

Spring Juried Show 2025

---

Juror Statement

The Rowayton Arts Center operates a wonderfully creative gallery space in a beautiful location for not only their members to display their art but even more importantly for the hosting of major open juried exhibits. It was my great pleasure to be asked to be the juror for the current exhibit and after more than 45 years of working in all departments at the Wadsworth Atheneum Museum of Art in Hartford I was thrilled by the quality and quantity of art submitted for entry. I worked through almost 400 very creative works of art to select the group of about 60 objects for inclusion in this year's show. The competitive nature of this type of exhibit supports the overall quality of the final selection and the way it is displayed really adds to the final look of the show. I worked to select a wide variety of media in both abstract and realist styles. I hope the selection creates lots of pointed conversation and pleasure for the visitors. Congratulations to all the artists selected and especially to the very deserving award winners. My sincerest appreciation to all the artists that submitted work to the show. I am a strong believer in the idea that our communities need all creative minds to work together to make our lives more fulfilling and peaceful. Keep up the good work RAC!

Judge's Bio

Cecil B. Adams has over 42 years of professional museum experience at the Wadsworth Antheneum in Hartford, CT. He has served in many roles in the curatorial and exhibitions departments and is currently the Director of Facilities and Capital Projects. Primarily focused on exhibition design and production, he has worked on over 425 exhibitions across genre, medium, place and time.